

START WRITING HERE

The African Elephants trunk is very long and has no bone. Females have one calf at a time. Females are smaller than males and have smaller tusks. They breed every four years and have no set breeding time. They live from 55 to 60 years old. They eat a large amount of bark, grass, fruit and leaves they weigh up to 5900 kg.

They live almost everywhere in Africa. Females travel with other females and their calves.